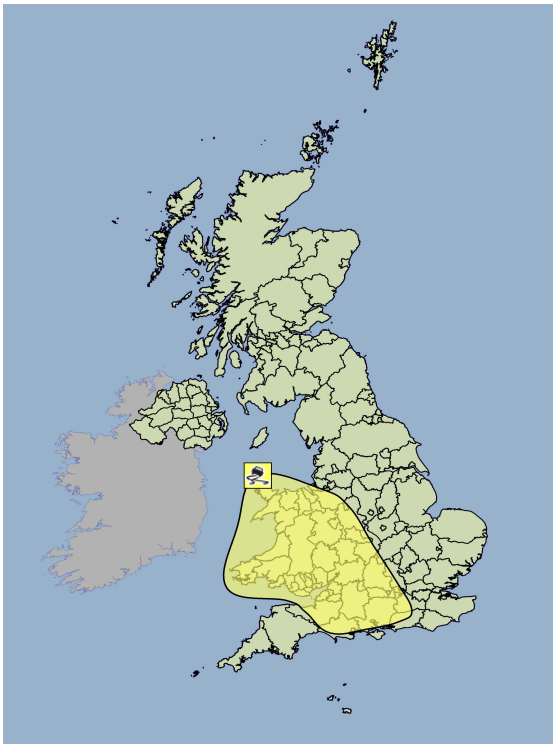
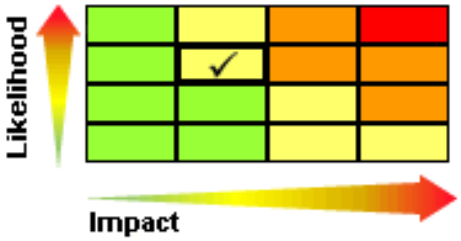
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Clear skies will allow temperatures to fall widely below freezing on Friday evening. Particularly at risk of icy patches are roads, pavements and cycleways which are either still snow covered, where surfaces are wet from partially melted snow or standing water and areas where wintry showers occur during the late afternoon or evening.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 17:00 on Fri, 15th Jan 2016 until 10:00 on Sat, 16th Jan 2016

Temperatures will fall sharply after dark on Friday evening allowing icy patches to form on untreated surfaces, including footpaths and cycleways, especially where there have been wintry showers today. Please be aware of the potential for difficult travel conditions.
